Castle Hot Springs Resort
Will Remain Open This Year Long After the Official Closing Date, May
1; It Pleases the People

CASTLE HOT SPRINGS, Ariz., April 27.—Owing to the charming weather prevailing here, many of the guests have determined to remain at Castle Hot Springs after May 1, the date for the closing of the season. The present is the longest and most successful year in the history of the resort, founded fourteen years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Lippincott, of Philadelphia, accompanied by Miss Elizabeth Babcock, of Watertown, N. Y., and others, leave for a camping trip to Flagstaff today. En route, they will visit Roosevelt dam and explore the cliff dwelling at Montezuma's Castle and the Indian Gardens in the Verde valley.

Mrs. F. M. Babcock left yesterday for San Francisco, her cottage home, where she will stay with old friends for some weeks.

Miss Mary Cobb also left yesterday for her home in Cooperstown, N. Y., there to join her mother, who spent the season here.

Dr. Edwin J. Gillette and Mrs. Gillette, of Lowell, Mass., spent the week end at the resort, returning to Phoenix Tuesday. W. W. Duncan and wife also of Lowell and friends of the Gillettes, joined them for a short stay. The Duncans say that they will make Phoenix their permanent home.

Messrs. Leo and Sidney Goldman, their wives and chauffeur drove over Saturday, remaining until Sunday afternoon.

Harry Welch, the indomitable secretary of the Phoenix board of trade, came over Sunday for a reunion with his Prescott friends. Mr. and Mrs. Harold A. Cheverton and Malcolm Fraser.

Bernard Cuniff arrived Sunday, expecting to stay until the close of the season, but news from his zinc properties in Tennessee of a rich ore body uncovered Tuesday, hastened his departure Wednesday. Joe Mc. Avin, of Prescott beguiled Cuniff's stay with stories of Yavapai's prosperity.

John E. Roche, a business man of Louisville, Ky., came Thursday, to remain until the weather drives him northward.

A. W. Edwards, of Prescott, made a flying visit Wednesday for the benefit of his health.

SANITARY TOILET CONVENIENCES.

Sanitary toilet conveniences for summer use—when such things get quickly soiled because their owner is doing more or less traveling and often living in rather cramped quarters—are made of bakelite, Irish linen or figured lawn, which, being launderable, appeal to girls of dainty habits.

Night dress cases—which are a positive necessity if one is traveling much on steamers or stopping at ho-els—are made by taking a 16-inch length of any lingerie material, trimming the selvage sides with narrow lace, and on the under side five inches from either edge, setting on a half-inch heading. After doubling over the width of the cloth work two buttonholes at either end of one side to fit into corresponding buttons on the other and thread the heading with ribbons, which when drawn up will form two ruffles at either end of the case and at the same time make it as narrow as desired.

Soiled handkerchief bags of capacious size are formed of two 10-inch circumference circular pieces of appliqued, soutache braided, medallion trimmed or monogram embroidered linen lined with envelope pockets into which may be slipped the halves of circular pieces of pasteboard to keep the sides flat. Both sides of a 45x19-inch strip of plain lingerie material are then gathered about the diameter of the round pieces, the joining concealed by a heading, making a neatly finished puff with an opening at one side which may be fastened with several crocheted buttons or with wash ribbon ties. This sort of bag will accommodate a great number of handkerchiefs and can be easily laundered.

To make finger slippers for bedroom use take a strip of figured lawn or muslin embroidery 25x8 inches, join the two ends, turn over one edge and shirr it for a half inch ribbon run and attach the lower edge to a padded inner sole then draw up the ribbon runners and tie them into bows at the base of the instep.

PROBLEMS OF LIGHT
Much attention has been given to the question of the best means of avoiding glare from artificial lights, says Harper's Weekly. It is beginning to be recognized that the introduction of intensely dazzling points of light raises problems in the solution of which the oculist must take a hand. Many experts have urged the advisability of imitating daylight. The quality of daylight is its diffusion, whereby the eye is saved from injury. It has been estimated that the diffused daylight from a clear sky is about 60 per cent of the direct sunlight. It is pointed out that the injurious eye effects of artificial lights are not confined to the light centers, but arise also from the surface of shining paper and other bright objects.

Experiments have been made in this country and abroad with reference to the best sources from which to produce an imitation of average daylight. It has been found that the color of the light, given by certain gas mantles and by carbon, tungsten and tantalum filament glow lamps is in each case closely complementary to that of the mercury vapor arc. When light from either of these sources is combined with that of the mercury arc in proper proportion, a satisfactory imitation of daylight is produced.

CHINESE ANGELS, OF COURSE.

Mabel—Mama, are the angels in heaven dressed in white?

Her Mother—We are told so, dear. Mabel—Well, who does all the laundry work?—Boston Transcript.

FOR GOOD ROADS.

If any evidence were needed of the nation-wide extent of the sentiment in favor of federal aid for good roads, it could be found in the thirty-five separate bills that have been introduced in the United States congress, each making some provision for a government appropriation to this end. Senators and representatives from Washington, Maryland, Colorado, North Carolina, Texas, Indiana, Illinois, Alabama, Virginia, Iowa, Missouri, Ohio, Kansas, West Virginia, Georgia, Tennessee, Utah, South Carolina, Idaho, and Louisiana have introduced these measures. Their provisions range all the way from the establishing of a commission to study the subject to an immediate appropriation of $20,000,000 for good roads. There is a general belief that the time is at hand when the United States must lend its aid for the improvement of our highways, as it has lent its aid to the construction of our railroads, the improvement of our water-courses, and the protection of our harbors. To crystallize this belief into a definite plan of action is the aim of the American Automobile association—George C. Diehl, in Harper's Weekly.

DELEGATES ATTENDED BANQUET LAST NIGHT

Dwight B. Heard Attended Roosevelt Supporters at a Dinner Given at Hotel Adams.

Delegates representing the Roosevelt clubs of Arizona assembled yesterday in the R. at P. hall in this city and accomplished the preliminaries of a state league of Roosevelt clubs. There are now fourteen organized clubs in the state and fifty delegates were present from six counties.

A permanent organization was effected by the election of J. F. Cleveland, of Phoenix, president, and Moses Kelly, of Tucson, treasurer. A committee on permanent organization was formed composed of Messrs. Fowler, of Cochise; Guild of Pinal; Fisher of Maricopa; Howell of Pima; Sapp of Navajo and Molloy of Yavapai.

A telegram was read from Joseph Dixon, national chairman. It claimed 261 delegates for Roosevelt, gave Taft 103, Cummins 10, La Follette 36, and 112 unattached.

The convention adopted a series of resolutions pledging the members to work for Roosevelt's nomination.

The delegates were entertained at dinner at the Hotel Adams by National Committeeman Dwight B. Heard. Addresses favoring the movement were made by Judge Sidney Sapp of Holbrook, W. J. Watson of Tucson, North Guild of Pinal, T. D. Molloy of Yuma, R. S. Fisher and J. F. Cleveland of Phoenix and Judge Witcher of Gila county. A statement regarding the movement was made by National Committeeman Dwight B. Heard.

Telegrams were read from the Yavapai county clubs and from Governor Hadley, of Missouri.

ARCHBISHOP HUGHES AND THE DRINK.

I have been told, on excellent authority, that the late Archbishop Hughes used to tell a story at his own expense, with the quiet glee of a genuine humorist. He was driving one day in a jaunting-car across the Golden Vale, on his way toward the famous Rock of Cashel. His "jaunty," which is the same as "car-driver," looked at him several times, with evident perplexity; there was a question in his eye, but he did not express it, restrained by the instinctive politeness of the gentle Gael. Archbishop Hughes, for this cross-country drive, had dressed somewhat as any sedate-minded tourist might, in seemingly raiment, but with nothing markedly ecclesiastical in his appearance. After the jaunty had glanced at a dozen times, the latter noticed it, and, tactfully and gently, asked his driver to tell what it was that filled him with concern. The jaunty made answer: "To tell ye the truth, yer honor."

Or did he thinkin' that ye had somethin' of the look of a priest?"

Archbishop Hughes looked at the man without smiling, in the way Irishmen have when they are meditating something exceptionally humorous and keen:

"Yes," he answered, "I used to be a priest once, but I am not one now," which was true to the letter, as he had since been consecrated a bishop. But the jaunty took the answer differently, and with deepest feeling replied:

"Isn't that abhuf? An' wuz it the drink that done it?"—John Carlton, in Harper's Weekly.
